I also drove the same paid off car for a couple years until I bought a new compact car because my old car could no longer pass the smog exam. So, there is a good chance you could plan a similar budget RTW trip for a similar budget.

And then I liked the limitation being it was on a per site basis, so the more sites you visit, the more you burn. Lots of solo hikers commenting here I guess. When you burn the wood smoke, the fire gives hotter, cleaner, healthier heat. I wish everyone, including myself, lots of luck in all of their endeavors!

Overall, the advice here is awesome and I appreciate it very. Because the charge light is dependent on the output heat of your fire that you produce in your Bio Lite.
